

Tulsa Law Review

Volume 37
Number 4 The Scholarship of Morton J. Horwitz Volume 37 | Number 4

Summer 2002

From The Editors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.law.utulsa.edu/tlr>

Part of the Law Commons

Recommended Citation

From The Editors, 37 Tulsa L. Rev. x (2002).

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.law.utulsa.edu/tlr/vol37/iss4/9>

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by TU Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Tulsa Law Review by an authorized editor of TU Law Digital Commons. For more information, please contact megan-donald@utulsa.edu.

A Note from the Editors

The purpose of the Tulsa Law Review is to publish outstanding scholarly works covering the full spectrum of the law that stimulate critical thinking, provoke legal debate, and guide the law in a direction that better serves our society. The Law Review has accomplished this goal by hosting the First Annual Legal Scholarship Symposium honoring the works of Morton J. Horwitz, the Charles Warren Professor of American History at Harvard Law School.

In March 2002, we had the privilege of presenting to our community some of the most distinguished legal scholars in the country as they “contemplate[d] a master scholar and his work, but happily not in an obituary way,” as aptly noted by Professor Robert Gordon. Those who attended the Symposium included Morton J. Horwitz, William Novak, Jenny B. Wahl, Raymond T. Diamond, Robert W. Gordon, Nancy Isenberg, and James L. Huffman. The following articles contained within this issue is representative of the discourse, which transpired at the Symposium.

It is always a little scary to announce the first of anything, but we are proud to announce that there will be at least a Second Legal Scholarship Symposium celebrating the collective works of Sanford V. Levinson, the W. St. John Garwood and W. St. John Garwood, Jr. Centennial Chair in Law and Professor of Government at the University of Texas.

We would like to thank Dean Martin H. Belsky for providing the funds to bring this Symposium to fruition. A special thanks to our Faculty Advisor, Professor Paul Finkelman for his invigorated interest in the Law Review and its scholarly mission. A personal thanks to Professor Finkelman for the open door, your open mind, and never being stingy with your time—we are truly grateful for all your professional and personal advice.

Samuel E. Joyner
Editor-in-Chief

Chad J. Kutmas
Articles Research Editor