EDITOR'S NOTE

November 22, 1994

On February 23-26, 1994, the University of Tulsa held the Energy, the Environment, and Global Economic Growth conference. Several exceptional speakers appeared at the conference, five of whom our staff found particularly interesting: The Honorable James R. Jones, U.S. Ambassador to Mexico; Richard Williamson, Deputy Assistant for International Affairs, U.S. Department of Energy; Maurice Strong, Chairman, Ontario Hydro; Peterson Zah, President, Navajo Nation; and Yegor Gaidar, Former Deputy Prime Minister of Russia and Member, Russian Parliament.

We have included summaries of these speakers in this issue because they reflect the thoughts of individuals with a wide range of experience and various backgrounds. We have included their comments in the hope that they will provide some insight for evaluating issues involving the subjects addressed: energy, the environment, and global economic growth.

A complete compilation of remarks made by speakers appearing at the conference was prepared by the Keens Company and was published by the University of Tulsa in the Spring of 1994. If you would like further information on the conference, please contact the Journal office or the University of Tulsa.
